ANTIOCH TO HAVE ELECTRIC

Hopes to Reach Rockford, Elgin and all of Famous Fox Lake Region

WAUCONDA ON THE MAP

"Waukegan, Rockford and Elgin Traction Co." Name of New Road—Elaborate Plans are in Prospect

"The Waukegan, Rockford and Elgin Traction Company," is the name of the new road which Robert Wynn is promoting out of Waukegan and which he confidently expects will be built ere long because he has received such unexpected encouragement.

The proposed company will build connecting lines from Waukegan, westerly to Rockford and south-westerly to Elgin, also north-westerly to Fox Lake and Antioch. This line will approximate 75 miles.

At the present time there are through connections from Chicago via Elgin to Rockford, Freeport, Beloit and Janesville that will connect with at both Elgin and Rockford on our west and south branches at Waukegan. It will also connect with the Chicago & Milwaukee Electric which now connects Chicago and Milwaukee.

They will also build a line from a convenient point from main line to Fox Lake and Antioch, this will form a direct line from Aurora and Elgin to Fox Lake and the line from Waukegan to Rockford will give direct east and west connections.

A car on the even hour will leave Waukegan for Rockford and a car on the half hour will leave Waukegan for Elgin, this will give half hour service to all points between Waukegan and junction at Fox Lake.

In summer two trains will leave every half hour for Fox Lake, at Fox Lake junction train will divide, one car going to Rockford and the other going to Elgin, the line from Fox Lake junction to Fox Lake, Lake Marie, Channel Lake and Antioch will meet all cars on the line from Waukegan to Rockford and Elgin.

It is conceded that it will bring as many people to the lakes from Elgin and Rockford connections as it will from Waukegan connections, and as any one can readily see the possibility of the large earnings from a line such as is proposed.

From Waukegan to Elgin it will pass through Gurnee, Drace Lake, Grayslake, Round Lake, Fox Lake Junction, Wauconda, Barrington, Duane to Elgin.

From Waukegan to Rockford will be the same to Fox Lake Junction then to Volo, Mellen, Woodstock, Mazon, Belvidere and Rockford.

The value to farmers and property owners along the proposed route will be considerable, taken from similar electric interurban railways throughout Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, where they have been built and operated for more than three years, an increase of value to farm land lying three miles on each side of the right of way has increased in value as follows:

The first half mile on each side will increase according to location from $25 to $75 per acre; the second half mile on each side from $15 to $25 per acre; the second mile on each side from $10 to $15 per acre; the third mile on each side from $8 to $10 per acre. Town lots and city property adjacent to and near the interurban line increases in value from $10 to $500 per lot; resorts and lake frontage property from 300 to 500 per cent.

It will cost to construct and equip this 75 miles of single track approximately $20,000 per mile, a total of $1,500,000.

The Great Pacificator.

The uncle of Europe, who is also the ruler of 400,000,000 of the human race, has been the great pacificator of our age. He, more than anyone, has helped to clear the world's sky. He may even act as a bridge of true friendship between France and Germany, the only nations that cannot yet be quite friends without reserve. —Shonold Daily Independent.

BIG PLANT FOR GURNEE

Citizens of Gurnee and Promoters of Factory Hold Meeting.

A mass meeting of citizens of Gurnee and vicinity was called for Wednesday evening of this week for the purpose of discussing plans for bringing to that locality a factory which is just being launched, and which, the promoters promise will in a few years employ 2,500 men.

The name of the proposed plant is the Automatic Roller Bearing company and the prospectus of the promoters shows a plant of model nature, which if erected at Gurnee would be a big thing for that community.

The ball was started rolling by R. D. Wynn who arranged the meeting between the farmers of the vicinity and the promoters of the factory. The latter visited Gurnee liked the locality and agreed to meet the people there Wednesday evening to discuss plans, and providing arrangements are made will locate there within a year.

There is "method in his madness," so far as Mr. Wynn is concerned, he desires to promote his electric railroad west and this is one way that promoters are now-a-days doing it, they interest factories to locate on their line.

He has interested the people in locating at Gurnee and the idea is to build the proposed electric road west to touch their site. With the factory located there, the electric road plan would surely be given a big impetus and it looks as if the features will be worked out successfully if the hearty co-operation of the people is obtained by the promoters.

INCORPORATE ROUND LAKE

Special Election to be Held on Dec. 8th to Wipe Out Blind Pigs

Tuesday morning Judge Frost gave permission to promoters of the village of Round Lake to hold a special election on December 8 to decide whether the people want to incorporate or not.

Attorney Claire Edwards appeared for the promoters and the petition was signed by A. M. White, William Rising, Walter Wright and thirty others. They proved a court that there are 325 residents in the limits which are included in the proposed village.

The limits of the proposed village are bounded as follows: On the north by the John Hart and Walter White farms; south by line about one-fourth mile from the town line; west practically by town line; east by Hainesville corporation and the E. F. Shank land.

The limits include the huge Armour ice house where about 35 men are employed summers and about 500 in the winter. This is a most important feature as the ice company comes in as a part of the incorporation, subject to taxes and police laws.

The reason for incorporating the village is given by Mr. Edwards as follows: "It is a move of the better element of the district to get the place under police protection. As it is now, there is no policing of the district and there are many blind pigs. Under the incorporation, there will be police and those who sell liquor will have to pay the village for the privilege. The better element has favored the plan and nobody seems to question the outcome of the election."

WM. FORBRICK PASSED AWAY OCTOBER 15

On Sunday afternoon at his home at Channel occurred the death of William Forbrick at the age of eighty years, his death being due to the general breaking down of the entire system caused by advancing age.

Mr. Forbrick was born in Germany in the year of 1828 but has been a resident of this country for many years and for a number of years has made his home at Channel where he was a well known and respected resident. He has been in failing health for a number of years and his death was not unexpected.

He leaves to mourn his loss a wife and six children, four sons, Paul of Antioch, Louis of Wadsworth, Wm. and Fred of Wilmet, and two daughters Mrs. John Harm and Mrs. John Coulson both of Richmond.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon with Rev. F. R. McNamara officiating. The bereaved family have the sympathy of their many friends.

DEATH CAUSED BY ACCIDENT

Some time Saturday night at Trevor "Paddy" Shields, fell from the hay mow of a barn and sustained injuries from which he died Sunday.

Doctors were summoned but nothing could be done for the unfortunate man and he died without regaining consciousness. He was about sixty years of age and had lived in this vicinity for many years. He was a "character" about town, and his death in this manner was nothing more than could have been expected.

MAKES NOVEL ARREST

Waukegan Officer Nabs Pick-pocket Before Theft is Discovered

STOLE WALLET AND MONEY

Victim Did Not Know He Had Been Robbed Until He was About to Buy Cigar for Officer When Discovery Was Made

When, at ten fifteen Friday night, Joe Bondinovic of Waukegan was confronted with the man who had picked his pocket of a wallet containing $58.78 he denied that he had been a victim of the thing and laughed at the idea.

An instant later he bought a cigar for the policeman who had the pick-pocket in his charge and then it was, in reaching for the fat wallet, that he came to the conclusion that he had indeed been robbed.

It was a case where a police officer captured a thief before the victim knew that he had been victimized.

Friday night near the time mentioned Officer Mat Stankar, three months on the force, was patrolling his South Genesee street beat when he saw a man slink crouchingly past the saloon of George Sessar at Lake and Genesee streets and after he got beyond the lights dart down the shadows of Lake street.

He pursued the man, suspecting that something was wrong, and after a chase to Sheridan road took Joe Zwiler in charge. With him he returned to the saloon.

He inquired if anything was wrong and was told that there was not.

Then Bondinovic ordered the cigar for the officer, who refused to drink, and when he sought for his money, which he had in a wallet in his outside coat pocket, he discovered his loss.

Zwiler denied having it, a search failed to bring it to light, so Stankar arrested both men and took them to jail.

Then he returned to the Sessar saloon and he and Sessar set out with a candle to see if they could not find the missing wallet. They found it in the deep grass at Sheridan road and Lake street.

Next morning Swiller confessed all. He had taken the wallet from Bondinovic's pocket while the latter was buying him a drink and slunk off with the fifty-eight odd dollars. He was bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $500 by Justice Weiss and signed a confession.

Later Chief of Police Tyrrell identified him as the man who lied months ago to steal James Fraher's horse from a pasture on Marion street.

This makes Officer Stankar's capture an important one for which he deserves great credit.

CHARLES THAYER COMES OUT FOR SHERIFF

Charles Thayer, who, for many years has acted as janitor of the court house and jail Wednesday formally stated that he is in the race for the republican nomination for sheriff.

There had been some talk that he would enter the contest but not until Wednesday did he formally announce his intentions. He is well known in the city and county and his entrance makes at least three avowed candidates, former sheriff, Geo. N. Powell having declared his intentions of being a candidate, as has also Thomas Morton of Highland Park.

ASKS $5,000 FROM WOMAN FOR SLANDER

A sensational slander suit was started Wednesday afternoon by Orvis and Beaubien for Mrs. Tessie Lux Lyslund of Waukegan formerly of Wadsworth, against Miss Emma Heydecker, of Wadsworth, sister of C. T. and E. J. Heydecker of Waukegan and a well known resident of Wadsworth.

Mrs. Lyslund asks $5,000 damages for alleged slander. She charges in her bill that Miss Heydecker made remarks about her marriage, hence the suit.

TEACHER DEMANDS $10,000

For Being Dismissed from her School on Account of Claim of Incompetency

A HOT FIGHT IS PROMISED

Miss Grace Durkin, Teacher in Deerfield School No. 108, Starts Action Against Attorney F. S. Munro

Miss Grace E. Durkin has started suit through Orvis and Beaubien against Fayette S. Munro for $10,000 and also suit against the directors of the district No. 108, Deerfield township, for something like $600.

The suit promises to be a most sensational one, as it is a case where a teacher was dismissed and she has questioned the board's right to dismiss her until the year was up.

Her suit against the board is to collect pay which she would have earned had she been allowed to continue her year out.

Her complaint against Munro, who is an attorney for the electric road and well down, is that he led the fight against her and that she was dismissed because of alleged incompetency.

She asks damages on the grounds that her reputation as a teacher was damaged as the result of being dismissed for this reason, and she contends she was thoroughly competent, but that it was something personal which caused her to be dismissed. She claims her dismissal was wholly unlawful and a hot fight is promised in which the residents of the district are quite divided, some claiming the woman is right in her contentions, others that she is wrong.

According to neighbors Hoganson and Bedford had apparently been the best of friends and nothing in their dealings of recent days tended to show that there was any enmity between them.

This murder aroused the community to a high pitch of excitement and the mystery was not cleared up until John Bedford after being arrested at Beatrice, made a confession of his guilt, claiming that he shot in self defense, while on the homeward journey between Crystal Lake and Woodstock.

KILLED WHILE PICKING UP COAL ON RAILROAD TRACK

While picking up coal in the yards of the Chicago and Milwaukee railroad just north Madison street Monday afternoon, a Finlander who has been identified as man who has been staying at the home of Emil Henderson on 308 Spring street for the past week, was struck and almost instantly killed by train No. 12 southbound, which reaches Waukegan at 2:59 o'clock.

The victim had been picking up coal and in stepping aside to get out of the way of a train which was backing onto a siding to wait for the through train to pass, stepped in front of the other train. His lifeless body was sent crushed and bleeding into the ditch. He was taken immediately to the Larson & Conrad undertaking.

Mr. Henderson, in speaking of the matter said that the victim, who comes from the old country, came to his home a week ago and asked for shelter. He was taken in and his board and lodging was paid for by little odd jobs.

He had been in the habit of going to the railroad yards and picking up lumps of coal which had fallen from cars. His name is not known to Mr. Henderson. He was about 55 years of age and has relatives living here. He has lived here for 25 years and is known to his friends as "Henry."

MAYOR BULLOCK SAVES FRIEND FROM DROWNING

While at Paddock Lake this week, Mayor Bullock proved a hero when he rescued from a watery grave Louis Tewes, his partner in ice business.

They had gone there to look over the ice field and Mr. Tewes, throwing a big stone on the ice, concluded it was strong enough to bear his weight and he stated out. It stood for a while and then gave way, let him down into the water. With a yell the ice man struggled to keep his head above the water. Mayor Bullock grasped the situation at a glance. He realized that he was lighter than Mr. Tewes and that he would be held up by the ice so he started out, stepping carefully and holding part of his weight off the ice like Opie Dildock would do in the fully pogo. He reached Mr. Tewes, extended his hand and drew him to the surface and along the ice until they reached the shore in safety. Other than being drenched to the skin he was unhurt and naturally felt very grateful to his rescuer. He says he will apply for a Carnegie medal for the mayor.

ARRESTED IN BEATRICE, NEB.

John Bedford of Marengo Confesses to Murder in Self Defense.

John Bedford of Marengo, suspected of the murder of Oscar Hoganson near that city two weeks ago has been arrested at Beatrice, Neb.

His arrest is the climax of some clever detective work that has been in progress since the fact of the crime was brought to light. State's attorney Lowell obtained a clew last Friday and at once telegraphed to the authorities at Beatrice, with the result that Bedford was captured.

City Marshal Burko of Harvard, who has been working on the case left the first of the week for Beatrice, Neb., and as soon as requisition papers could be secured he returned with his prisoner.

Bedford must answer to the charge of murder, sworn out by James Hoganson, a brother of the murdered man. Two weeks ago last Saturday the body of Oscar Hoganson, a young swede, was found buried in the hen house on the farm of John Bedford, four miles north of Marengo. Hoganson had been missing for several days having been seen last on Saturday October 24. He and Bedford were together on that day, and he is reported to have been at Bedford's that night.

A few days later friends became alarmed at his absence and telephoned his sister in Chicago. She went at once to Marengo. The sheriff was notified and a search begun, which ended in the finding of the proof of the horrible crime.

Hoganson lived alone four miles north of Marengo, a quiet, respected young man about 23 years of age. He had no trouble with anyone as far as is known. Bedford also lived alone in the neighborhood.

The disappearance of Bedford at once led to the suspicion that he was the perpetrator of the crime. A ballet hole under Hoganson's right ear plainly told the manner of his death.

According to neighbors Hoganson and Bedford had apparently been the best of friends and nothing in their dealings of recent days tended to show that there was any enmity between them.

This murder aroused the community to a high pitch of excitement and the mystery was not cleared up until John Bedford after being arrested at Beatrice, made a confession of his guilt, claiming that he shot in self defense, while on the homeward journey between Crystal Lake and Woodstock.

As Everett lives in Lake county, Highland Park, Foley, through Attorney Wellman, started action and the case was hard fought.

SAME SORT OF ROBBERY COMMITTED

Because of the similarity in several respects of the mode of operation in the robbery of the South Bend, Ind., postoffice Sunday morning, of $18,653, it is felt that possibly the same men robbed that office that robbed the Waukegan postoffice some weeks ago.

It is believed by the Chicago police the crime was committed by members of the notorious Eddie Fay gang of postoffice robbers.

This same aggregation, said to have held up postoffices all over the country, is supposed to have secured $30,000 from the Chicago postoffices in 1901.

The robbery was discovered by a clerk who worked one door north of the room temporarily occupied by the postoffice.

The clerk had occasion to enter the store and found both entrances securely bolted from the inside. He called an officer and they broke it open.

An examination showed a hole, 14x14 inches had been bored through a two foot fire proof wall into the postoffice vault, sufficient in size to admit a man. Through it the loot was heaved to others on the outside.

The drilling was done by an electric machine and the noise was so carefully muffled that a night force of clerks within 100 feet of the vault had no knowledge of what was taking place.

The robbers probably crept through a window of the adjoining store after being careful to bolt the entrance.

The loot consisted of 550,000 one cent stamps, 600,000 two cent stamps, 500 25-cent books of one cent stamps, 1000 25-cent books of two cent stamps, 500 59 cent books of 2-cent stamps and 500 97-cent books of 2-cent stamps.

NO CHANGE TO BE MADE IN THE COUNTY TAXES

County Clerk Hendee Monday received word from the state board of equalization notifying him that no change is made in the assessors' figures in Lake county on lands, lots or personal property.

The state rate is 50 cents on each $100 valuation, 42 cents being for the general revenue tax, and 8 cents for the state school fund.

The board made no change in the assessment last year hence the taxes here are left the same as the assessors fixed them a year ago.

BIGGEST JUDGMENT EVER PAID

In the History of the Lake County Court Wednesday at Waukegan

JUDGMENT TO ATTORNEY

Patrick Foley of Chicago Secures Judgment for $12,500 for Personal Injuries He Received

The largest personal judgment ever paid in Lake county was satisfied Wednesday when attorneys representing Patrick H. Foley of Chicago and Francis D. Everett of Highland Park, representing Everett & Campbell, appeared in Circuit Clerk Brockway's office and filed papers showing that they had paid over to Patrick Foley $12,500 in satisfaction of the judgment entered in the local court.

And thus is dropped one of the most interesting and hard fought personal injury cases the county has ever seen. But, the strange part of it all is that appearances are that the attorneys in the case got all the money.

According to the records, Foley some time ago assigned one half of the prospective judgment to his attorney, B. J. Wellman, of Chicago, and later the other half to Wellman's wife.

The case started as the result of Foley meeting injuries while eating his lunch under the shade of the Kohl-Middleton home museum, Chicago, when an iron cover of a window dropped and struck him on the head. He was laid up long and sustained permanent injuries.

As Everett lives in Lake county, Highland Park, Foley, through Attorney Wellman, started action and the case was hard fought.

In 1904 Foley was injured. In 1905 he started suit and secured a $10,000 verdict by Lake county jury; defendant appealed to Appellate court, which remanded it for new trial.

In 1907 new trial in Lake county gave Foley verdict for $25,000 and defendants appeal to Appellate court after Judge Donnelly had reduced judgment to $12,500. The Appellate court sustained judgment and defendants appealed to the supreme court.

In 1908 the supreme court sustained the judgment and steps were taken to settle matters.

The general belief about the court house is that Foley and his attorney made a compromise with the defendants whereby they accepted an amount smaller than $12,500, but it is felt that it is not much less because of the apparent certainty of winning in the end.

The fact that the two judgments show that Wellman got all the judgments causes attorneys to wonder if Foley makes anything out of the suit or if he has to pay it all over for legal services.

HORSE THEIF IS CAPTURED NEAR BURLINGTON

A character known as Joe Miller, who has made his home his home in the vicinity of Genoa Junction for some time, stole a horse from Frank Darling's pasture near Genoa Junction Sunday. He sold the animal for $25 receiving $15 down. The theft was discovered Sunday evening and Deputy Sheriff Berrows and Constable Reed of Genoa Junction, started on a hunt for Miller. It was found that he was headed towards Burlington, and Chief of Police Boller was called up soon after midnight to look out for Miller. In the meantime the Genoa Junction officers followed up their clues in an automobile, and found their man about a mile outside of Burlington. He was taken before Justice Hoefner at New Maunster on Tuesday, given a hearing and bound over for trial to the Kenosha county circuit court.

MILLBURN INSURANCE ASSESSMENT

The directors of the Millburn Mutual Insurance Company have loved an assessment for 1908 of one dollar and sixty cents ($1.60) on each one thousand dollars insured to pay the losses of $4,451.25 that have occurred during the year. Assessment will be due and called for in thirty days.

WRITES NOVEL IN TEN DAYS.

That Is Feat of Popular F. Marlen Crawford.

The popular American novelist, F. Marlen Crawford, has a beautiful villa in Sorrento. The villa, on the edge of rich brown cliffs that fall sheer, like a wall, into the blue waters of the Mediterranean, offers a superb view of the shining sea, off Capri, of Naples and Vesuvius.

Mr. Crawford has written an incredible number of novels. Indeed, it is said of him that he can, without difficulty, write a long and really quite readable novel in ten days. Hence it is not strange that with his wealth and fame he should be the lion of Sorrento.

In a Sorrento hotel sat a group of American tourists.

"The natives here," said a tourist from Duluth, "talk of nothing but Marianna Crawford. I have found out at last what they mean. They mean, by Jove, our great American novelist, F. Marlen Crawford."

"Crawford is a wonderful writer," said a tourist from Dolse Olty. "He thinks nothing of turning out a novel in three days."

"I doubt that," a tourist from Baltimore said. "Yet it is true that Crawford has written a great many books—over 100, I think the figures stand. And he is still young, remember. He may yet break all records."

"I don't believe any man living ever read all Crawford's books," said a tourist from New York.

A tall, broad-shouldered gentleman, who had been listening on the outskirts of the group, with something like a sneer lifting his sweeping mustache, spoke up impatiently at this juncture.

"I have read them all," he said. The tourist looked to surprise at the stranger.

"Have you, eh?" said a Chicagoan. "And who, may I ask, are you?"

"I am Crawford," was the reply.

Lay Low.

"Let us get out in the sunshine," says a Georgia poet, "but be careful to keep far from the farmers who would waylay and plow us. I believe in 'sticking to the soil' in literature, but not in down-right reality—at the plowhandles, for instance, and as the man with the hoe in his hand. There is no poetry in the hungry braying of a Georgia mule, or the 'ge-haw' of the plowman!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Can This Be True?

If a woman admits to herself that she looks pretty well in a new gown, she will not admit it to the other women. If they compliment her dress, she will look surprised and say: "Oh, do you like it? It is just a common everyday dress."—Atlanta Constitution.

KISSING DAY AT HUNGERFORD.

Curious Old-Time Custom Which Still Prevails in an English Village.

The little town of Hungerford was recently the scene of the quaint celebration of Hocktide.

The property of the manor, which comprises a valuable trout fishery, has lately come within the purview of the charity commissioners, who have established a scheme for the future administration by popular trustees, but with the proviso that the holdings of the manorial court, with its picturesque old world customs, should be allowed to continue.

The functions began with a series of blasts on the historic horn, and then the tith men, armed with staves, set forth on their perambulations, their duty being to demand a penny from every male householder and a kiss from each lady who crossed their path. As a rule the privilege is granted with much good humor, and husbands look on with equanimity.

Meanwhile the Hocktide jury were sitting in a solemn conclave, appointing the constable and coroner and other ancient officers whose duties are more or less obsolete.—London Standard.

Reads Like a Fairy Tale.

An Aitchison girl had always heard of the impoliteness of women in failing to thank men for giving up a seat in the street car, and decided that she would be an exception. A man gave her a seat Saturday night in a crowded car, affording her the opportunity for which she had been looking. "Oh, thank you a thousand times," she said. "It is just what I wanted, and how did you ever guess it? It is so thoughtful of you, and I do appreciate it so much." Then, as she sank into the seat, "And such a comfortable seat! It is the most comfortable seat I ever sat in! Oh, thank you again so much!"—Aitchison Globe.

The Sunflower.

In some countries, notably in the Russian provinces north of the Caucasus, the sunflower serves other purposes besides ornamenting gardens with its huge golden bosses. The seeds are used to make oil, which is employed both in the manufacture of soap and cooking. The stems and leaves are burned and the ashes used to make potash. Last year the sunflower factories of the Caucasus produced 15,000 tons of potash.—Youth's Companion.

Not Quite What She Meant.

The young man who received the following note from his fiancée would have been better pleased if she had employed a comma or two: "Jack Huggard called yesterday. Jack couldn't have heard of our engagement, for before leaving he proposed. I told him I was sorry I was engaged to you."—Boston Transcript.

MOTHERS CAN'T RESIST IT.

With a pony as a "property," enterprising photographers have been reaping a harvest. The pony is of the Shetland variety and "calico" in pattern.

"The fond mother who can withstand the temptation of having darling baby photographed, astride of the pony, has not yet been found," one of the photographers explained. "We get from four to ten orders in each block in well populated neighborhoods. All sorts of subterfuges are used by the women. One of them forced us to 'rehearse' baby on the pony for a half hour before the picture was taken. She wanted some of the pictures on post cards, she said, so she could send copies to friends back east. She wished baby to look natural on the animal, so that the eastern friends would think the family out here had 'struck it rich' and were maintaining a stable of saddlers."

"Another woman who was not satisfied to allow the picture taken with her modest home in the background, asked us to take the picture over in the next block, where there was an unoccupied house of rather pretentious exterior. We did it and the woman ordered two dozen copies. Babies look so 'cute' on the pony, the women say. Next year we are going to introduce a big, kind-faced Newfoundland dog as a property. Don't be surprised if you receive a picture of somebody's darlingest darling with its chubby hands lost in the wavy hair on the dog's neck. We've got Chauncey Olcott beaten to a whisper in rigging up 'cut' scenes."—Kansas City Star.

Cheerful Ignorance.

"You'd be surprised," said the woman who is supposed to be wise, "how many people are perfectly ignorant of the correct way to write acceptances and regrets when they are asked to entertainments. It would pay some enterprising woman to go around writing them for those who don't know how. You'd be amazed to see the people who come to me to ask how it is done or to get me to write them. And," she admitted, "if the truth must be told, I don't know so awfully much about it myself."

The first United States patent for a breech-loading musket was granted to Thornton & Hill of North Yarmouth, Mass., May 21, 1811. The first successful breech-loading shotgun was that of Lefauchaux, invented about 1852, following many impractical devices.

CAUSED BY LACK OF THOUGHT.

Cruelly Most Frequently Inflicted In Carelessness.

Most of the cruelty of the world is thoughtless cruelty. Very few people would intentionally add to another's load or make his burden in life heavier or his path rougher. Most of the great heart-wounds are inflicted in a moment of anger, when, perhaps, we were too proud to apologize or to try to heal the grievous wounds we had made. Can anything be more cruel than to discourage a soul who is struggling to do the best he can, to throw stumbling blocks in the path of those who are trying to get on in the world against great odds? No life is just the same after you have once touched it. Will you leave a ray of hope or one of despair, a flash of light or a sember cloud across some dark life each day? Will you by thoughtless cruelty deepen the shadow which hangs over the life, or will you by kindness dispel it altogether? No matter how you feel or what is disturbing your peace of mind, never allow yourself to send out a discouraging, a cruel, or an unkind word or thought.—Success Magazine.

DOG SPECTACLES THE LATEST.

English Aristocrat May Have Started a New Fad.

A dog in spectacles is the latest fad. It has not reached New York yet, but Lady Aylesford has been seen in Piccadilly with one of her famous breed of chows in tow, wearing a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles. Her friends smiled, and she explained that the poor doggie's eyesight had become so defective that she had taken him to an oculist who fitted him with glasses. Dogs in New York have been taken to dentists and their teeth have been filled with gold; they have had their nails manicured by experts, the hair of poodles, spaniels and Scotch terriers have been dressed and curled by "fonsorial artists"; some delicate dogs, such as Italian greyhounds, have been dressed in scalloped coats; other pampered pets have worn gold bracelets and diamond collars, but spectacles seem new.

The next step will probably be for some one to fit a British bulldog with a scintillating eyeglass and a cigarette.

Know Meat from Carrion.

Tennessee bred two great orators in the olden days—Andrew Johnson, a Democrat, once president of the United States, and Gustavus A. Henry, a Whig, known as the "eagle orator of the South."

They ran against each other for governor, and when a long series of joint debates had reached its close Johnson addressed the Whigs in the audience: "I have spoken with the hoarse eagle orator from the Mississippi river to the Unaka mountains, and as yet I see no flesh in his talons or blood on his beak."

Quick as a flash Henry was on his feet, saying: "The American eagle is a proud bird and feeds not on carrion."—Nashville Banner.

Doctor Not Needed.

"I got an awfully funny note once from Gen. —, an Irish-American on the staff of Gov. —," said Dr. Shackelforth. "His wife was taken with a sudden indisposition, he summoned his servant and bade him get the buggy ready to come for me. By the time the horse was hitched up and the general had written me a note, his wife recovered. But he sent the note anyway, with a postscript."

"My Dear Doctor: I wish you would hurry around this way as fast as you can. My wife is desperately ill. Jump into my buggy and come along. Don't let anything stop you."

"P. S.—My wife having recovered, you need not come."

Our Names Lack Color.

At any early period, and indeed well toward the beginnings of modern history, proper names told something as to paternity, occupation and habitation; to-day they are quite colorless. A new Ulysses would no longer be Laertes; no Peter indicates that he is the son of Paul. A Carpenter or a Weaver is likely to be a fly-flinger or a clock broker. Even the place names, complicate the Nation, have pretty much disappeared, except in the case of nobility, and since the average gentle family has not for years lived on its titular estate, or perhaps has had none at all, our new Gastons de Foix give us a name about as splashy as John Jones.

How a Cat Caught Two Rats.

I once had a cat who did a rather remarkable ratting feat. He stalked two young rats on the eaves of a low flat stable roof, and caught one in the usual way. The other jumped on to an elderberry tree just below. Bob, however, not satisfied with the one grasped it firmly in his mouth, and then jumped headlong for the other. Either he was very lucky or extraordinarily agile, for he fell to the ground with one rat still in his mouth and the other in his paws, and promptly killed them both.—Boatman.

A Clean Slate.

A well-known doctor upon reaching home after a two days' absence, noticed that his slate was perfectly clean, whereupon he asked the servant girl, "Has nobody called during my two days' absence? I left this slate out for callers to write their names on, and it is perfectly clean."

"Oh, yes, sir," replied the servant, cheerfully. "A lot of folk has come. An' the slate got so full o' names that only this mornin' I had to rub them off to make room for more."

AND IT WAS SO VERY CLEVER.

Horace Walpole Figures In a Curious Case of Mistaken Identity.

"I heard a very funny story the other night about Horace Walpole," said Mrs. Blake. "I wish I could remember who told it. Henry, can you remember? Was it Mr. Sellers?"

"No!" said Blake, firmly. "It wasn't Sellers."

"I wonder if it could have been Mr. Windsor?"

"No," repeated Blake. "It wasn't Windsor."

Before Mr. Blake had a chance to express an affirmative or negative opinion of that hazard as to the source of the Walpole anecdote, Mr. Barton came in. Mrs. Blake, being by that time cured of herself, tried on him her recipe for winning universal affection.

"Oh, Mr. Barton," she said, "I am very glad to see you. I have hardly stopped laughing since I saw you the last time."

Mr. Barton, a cadaverous man with solemn eyes, looked rather foolish.

FATHER HAD DONE HIS BEST.

Boy's Training All Right, but He Seemed to Be Unlucky.

The colored boy was up in the children's court for the fifth time on charges of chicken-stealing. This time the magistrate decided to appeal to the boy's father.

"Now, see here, Ah," said he to the old man, "this boy of yours has been up in court so many times for stealing chickens that I'm sick of seeing him here!"

"Ah don' blame you, sah," returned the father; "ah's sick oh seein' 'im hyah too."

"Then why don't you teach him how to act? Show him the right way and he won't be coming here!"

"Ah has showed 'im de right way, sah," declared the old man earnestly; "ah has suttely showed 'im de right way, but he somehow keep gittin' caught comin' way wid dose, chicky ens!"—Woman's Home Companion.

Art of Begging Letters.

Nowhere is the ingenuity of the present age more apparent than in the begging letters received by rich men," said a private secretary. "I have been reading letters of that kind by the hundred for the last 15 years. Formerly all begging letters sounded alike. So stereotyped were they that they might have been copied bodily from a ready letter writer. Now the writers display originality. They may want the same old thing that their predecessors wanted, but they ask for it in a different way. People in need have acquired the art of expressing themselves in a dramatic way. That is to their advantage. It may be unjust, but usually the letter that hits a rich man hardest brings the most favorable reply. The writer may not really need assistance nearly so badly as some timid suppliant who clings to trite phrases, but he gets the relief asked for every time."

How the Cow Helped Australia.

"Corn is king in America and the cow is queen in Australia," remarked R. J. Guthrie, agricultural editor of the Sydney Mail. "The cow has redeemed the country, and hundreds of farmers who lost nearly all they had by the drought of 1902 are now better off than they ever were, and it is all due to the cow. Australian butter ranks well up with the best butter in the world."

"Our butter making is all done by the co-operative creamery system. It has been years since the farmer made butter on the farm. We have little use for a dual purpose cow in Australia. That is, the dairy farmer wants a cow that will give milk ten months in the year, and he uses it for no other purpose, while those who raise cattle for beef have no thought of milk production."

Numerous Blocks.

After several sudden jerks and abrupt stops the Chicago man on the southern railroad became apprehensive. Calling the porter aside, he said:

"Sam, is this train safe?"

"Safe as any, sah," assured the porter.

"Well, is there a block system on this road?"

Sam's grin extended from ear to ear.

"Block system, heah? Why, we had de greatest block system in de world. Ten miles back we were blocked by a load of hay, six miles back we were blocked by a mule, just now we were blocked by a cow and I reckon when we get further souf we'll be blocked by an alligator. Block system, hose? Well, Ah should smile."

Guess David Would.

Four-year-old Joe is very fond of Bible stories, and evidently follows the example of his best-loved hero as to meditation. "In the night watches," he yawned his mother one night, after midnight, with the question:

"Mamma, where is David now?"

"In heaven, I guess, Joe."

"Will I go to heaven when I die?"

"I hope so, Joe."

"Mamma," the little voice was very eager now, "do you s'pose when I get there David will just let me hold his sling shot a little while?"—Delineator.

The funeral was held on Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock at the Hickory church, and the remains were laid at rest beside her husband in the Hickory Cemetery.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop's first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he, "Each inside organ has its controlling or 'inside nerves' When these nerves fail those organs must surely falter. The vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by J. H. Swan."

No Police in Heaven. Small Isabel's particular friend, the policeman on the beat, contracted pneumonia and died. Isabel was greatly grieved until her mother convinced her that he had gone to heaven. Tickling, tight Coughs, can be surely and quickly loosened with a prescription Druggists are dispensing everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so very, very different than common cough medicines. No Opium, no Chloroform, absolutely nothing harsh or unsafe. The tender leaves of a harmless, lung healing mountainous shrub, gives the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. These leaves have the power to calm the most distressing Cough and to soothe and heal the most sensitive bronchial membrane. Mothers should, for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babies. Test it yourself! and see. Sold by J. H. Swan.

SYNOPSIS.

The Escapade opens, not in the romance preceding the marriage of Ellen Bloccum, a Puritan miss, and Lord Carrington of England, but in their life after settling in England. The scene is placed, just following the revolution, in Carrington castle in England. The Carringtons, after a house party, engaged in a family tilt, caused by jealousy. Lady Carrington agreed to cut cards with Lord Carrington, whose attention to Ellen had become a sore point with Carrington. The loss of $100,000 failed to perturb her, and her husband then cut for his wife's L. O. U. and his honor, Carrington winning. Additional attentions of Lord Carrington to Lady Carrington compelled the latter to vow that she would leave the castle. Preparing to flee, Lady Carrington and her chum Deborah, an American girl, met Lord Carrington at two a. m., he agreeing to see them safely away. He attempted to take her to his castle, but she left him stunned in the road when the carriage met with an accident. She and Deborah then struck out for Portsmouth, where she intended to sail for America. Hearing news of Ellen's flight, Lord Carrington and Seton set out in pursuit. Seton rented a fast vessel and started in pursuit. Strathgate, bleeding from fall, dashed on to Portsmouth, for which Carrington and Ellen were also headed by different routes. Strathgate arrived in Portsmouth in advance of the others. Finding that Ellen's ship had sailed before her, Strathgate and Carrington each hired a small yacht to pursue the wrong vessel, upon which each supposed Ellen had sailed.

"What are you going to do?" asked Deborah again.

"Use these on them," answered Ellen.

"You would not murder?"

"Peace, child. I have no bullets. These are but blank cartridges. Perhaps I can frighten them."

"Frighten Lord Strathgate?" laughed Deborah. "Don't try. It will only make him more angry, and—"

But Ellen stood up in the boat, balancing herself lightly in spite of the pitching, pointed her pistol at the other boat now not more than half a mile away, and pulled the trigger. There was a tremendous report, for Ellen had put in an extra large charge in default of a bullet.

"Someone in the boat astern stood up and waved his hat."

Ellen let him have the other pistol. Of course, there was sound and nothing more. But the concussion, the noise and the smoke relieved her feelings. Deborah covered down in the boat, released the tiller, let go the sheet and stopped her ears with her fingers. Ellen dropped her pistols and by the quickest kind of work, seized the tiller and sheet and got the boat under control before she broached it. It was a narrow escape, however, and convinced Lady Carrington that she could not indulge in any more sham battling. She watched the other boat carefully as her own gathered way once more but could detect no evidence that her firing had in the least intimidated those who were coming so recklessly after her.

Promising Deborah that she would not fire them again, she got the young woman to take the helm once more while she reloaded her pistols. She would have given anything for a couple of good honest leaden bullets. If she had even had a jeweled ring, she would have pounded it into shape and rammed it down the barrel, but she had divested herself of all her jewels except her wedding ring and she could not make up her mind to blow that away in the present emergency. Still the pistols were heavily charged and at close quarters there would be an unpleasant dose of powder for anyone who tried to molest her.

The other boat was coming up hand over hand now. In half an hour she would be alongside. Ellen swept the harbor ahead of her and was surprised to see she had not noticed it in the interest excited by the chase—coming down under full sail a large ship, an American merchantman evidently. She jumped to the conclusion that it must be the New Eagle. If she could intercept that ship and get aboard of her, her troubles would be over. Provided the ship were willing to heave to or to check her way, the boarding of her would be an easy matter, and Ellen was sailing on such a course that the interception of her would not be difficult. It was not for this boat close astern of her. Farther ahead Ellen also marked following hard on the great ship two boats like her own and the one pursuing. They were, like the merchantman, beating down the harbor and it seemed to Ellen's eyes that they were also chasing after the merchant ship.

She was more and more convinced as she studied it that it could be none other than the New Eagle. With salvation staring her in the face, Ellen feared that she would be unable to escape her nearest pursuer. She looked back and could have screamed aloud. "Ellen," said Deborah, who had given no thought to what was before her but who had been staring at the other boat, "I don't believe that's the earl of Strathgate."

"Who is it then?" asked Ellen who was thinking hard and desperately as to what were best to be done.

"It's—I'm sure it's—"

"Who, Lord Carrington?"

"Nay," answered Deborah with a little simper. "Sir Charles Seton."

"Impossible," cried Ellen brusquely. "How would he be there?"

"Tis he, I'm sure. I recognize him."

"You have keen eyes," said Ellen looking back. "I always supposed that mine were good."

"You might recognize him if it were Lord Carrington," said Deborah patly.

"Do you mean to imply that I—that you—"

Ellen gave it up as hopeless. "I don't care who it is. Look ahead. Turn your eyes from that young red coat. See you ship! That will be the New Eagle. See how white her canvas! And, yes—as the ship swung around on another tack and gave them a view of her broadside—there's the American flag. That means safety for us—freedom. If we can shake off this pestilent pursuer in our wake."

"But I don't want to shake him off!" cried Deborah.

"You must. Would you fall into his arms?"

"The most unbecomingly," answered Ellen.

"I don't care," cried Deborah, beginning to whimper.

"I guess you can stop crying," answered Ellen, contemptuously, "for we have no more chance of escaping from that boat than we have of getting aboard yonder ship."

Ellen's face gloomed as she spoke. To be foiled after all she had gone through by Sir Charles Seton, whose pursuit of her, after all, was simply for this mawkish, whimpering Deborah, whom for the first time in her life she hated, was more than she could bear. She came to a sudden resolution.

"I'll run the boat ashore and escape through the woods rather than be caught by them."

She swung the tiller over, hauled aft the sheet and in a moment the boat was running toward the island.

Both of them sailed faster than the Flying Star in the air then prevailing. When the big ship got out into the channel she would probably run away from the two fishing boats without difficulty. The wind being as it was necessitated a hard heat out, and again this gave the smaller vessels an advantage, for they could hold on where the great ship was compelled to tack for fear of shoal water. And with every tack they gained distance.

Carrington studied the sea intently and concluded that if the wind did not shift and it did not come to blow harder than it was, there was every prospect that both boats would overhaul the ship. Whether he could beat Strathgate at that game, however, in the time at his disposal was a question. At any rate there was nothing to do but build on. Master Haight had viewed Carrington's usurpation of the helm with some misgiving at first, but his distrust soon gave way to admiration, for Carrington was a small boat better handled than by the young sailor officer. If Carrington had been sailing the cutter in a race for a stake of £10,000, he could not have watched her more carefully or handled her more skillfully. He made everything tell.

That worthy fisherman, Cooper, who was sailing Strathgate's boat, albeit he did very well, was a mere tyro compared to Carrington. Indeed, Carrington felt as if he were sailing his boat for love, honor, happiness, revenge, all the passions that can engross a heart and move a soul. Strathgate was no sailor, but after an hour's rapid sailing over he could see that eventually Carrington would overhaul him. He spoke of this to Cooper, wringing a reluctant admission of the truth of his conclusions from the sailor, but the latter promised to put him alongside the merchant ship at least before Carrington ran him down.

MAN WAS TAKING NO CHANCES.

Elaborate Precautions to Forestall the Festive Germ.

A man whose poor hearing obliges him to use a speaking tube met another man who certainly deserves to be set down as the champion foe to germs. The meeting took place in the street. The deaf man signified his desire for conversation on a certain subject. The enemy to germs listened to the question put to him, then surveyed his end of the speaking tube dubiously. Before attempting to answer he took the deaf man by the arm and piloted him into a drug store, where he called for a liquid disinfectant in which he proceeded to immerse a portion of the tube.

"These things are worse than telephones to spread disease," he complained. "I don't know who talked into this last. I'm not going to take any chances."

The owner of the first aid to bearing looked on in consternation that was half anger, but as he was very anxious to secure an answer to his question he did not protest against the sterilization of the tube.

their position. Indeed, they had barely escaped ripping a mast out of the lugger. They were rocking their boat furiously and making every effort to get off, but they had gone on fair and square, the tide was on ebb, and Ellen concluded they were fixed for some time.

She rose in the stern sheets and laughed gleefully. She put her boat about and ran down to pass in easy hall of Sir Charles and his men.

"Good-by," she called, laughing with mockery that stung him, "before an hour we shall be aboard your ship. I am sorry that you were balked. A stern chase is a long chase, Sir Charles, as you will find upon the sea."

Poor Sir Charles had little to say for himself. He felt very much chagrined and bitterly disappointed.

"Good-by, Sir Charles," called Deborah, sadly. "Tis not my doing, and—"

"Mistress Deborah," answered Sir Charles, plucking up heart, "you have not seen the end of me. I shall find some means of following you wherever you go."

"There, Debbie," said Ellen, "heart up. You did your best to betray me, but I forgive you since we've got free. I told you, Sir Charles would follow you and he'll find you all the sweeter for his mad chase. Now for your ship."

And Ellen laid a course which would in half an hour intercept the oncoming merchantman.

CHAPTER XIII.

An Impromptu Affair on the High Seas.

It was hardly possible at first, even for so practiced and acute an eye as Carrington's, to determine whether he or Strathgate had the better boat. In the first place, the two cutters were continually on opposite courses, splitting tacks, the wind blowing straight into the harbor, and it was not until they had passed and repassed each other several times that Carrington became convinced that he was gaining on his antagonist. The gain, however, was a slight one. The difference in the rate of sailing between the two boats was not very great.

Both of them sailed faster than the Flying Star in the air then prevailing. When the big ship got out into the channel she would probably run away from the two fishing boats without difficulty. The wind being as it was necessitated a hard heat out, and again this gave the smaller vessels an advantage, for they could hold on where the great ship was compelled to tack for fear of shoal water. HAAS KILLS SELF IN JAIL

MAN WHO WOUNDED J. F. HENRY COMMITTS SUICIDE.

Injured Lawyer Is Making Excellent Progress on Road to Recovery, Say Surgeons.

San Francisco.—Morris Haas, who shot Francis J. Henry, shot and killed himself in his cell in the county jail Saturday night.

Haas was in his cell at the county jail with his guard. He retired to bed early, pulling the blanket over his head. A moment afterward the guard was surprised to hear a muffled report of the pistol under the blankets.

They stripped off the covering and found Haas dying with a bullet hole through his head and blood flowing from the wound.

Investigation showed that Haas had cunningly hidden a small, one-shot deringer in the back of his shoe, where it escaped the notice of his guards.

Capt. Duke of the police declares that he searched Haas carefully after stripping him and that he had no weapon then. As Mrs. Haas visited the prisoner Saturday afternoon, the officers believe she carried the deringer in her pocket and slipped it to her husband.

The condition of Mr. Henry is still most satisfactory and the attending surgeons report that he is making excellent progress on the road to recovery. He passed a comfortable night, sleeping most of the time, and rested easily Sunday.

Although the bullet has been located, imbedded in the left jaw about one inch from the front of the ear, the surgeons have decided not to extract it until Mr. Henry gains more strength.

When told that his assailant had taken his own life at the county jail, he said:

"It is too bad he did it before giving his reason for shooting me."

BLOODY BATTLE IN OKLAHOMA.

Four Men Are Murdered by Negro Desperado.

Okmulgee, Okla.—Five persons were killed and ten others wounded Sunday afternoon in a fight between Jim Deekard, a negro desperado, and law officers.

The dead, Edgar Robinson, sheriff of Okmulgee county; Henry Klaber, assistant chief of police of Okmulgee; two negroes named Chapman, brothers; Jim Deekard, negro.

The disturbances began at the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad station where Jim Deekard engaged in a fight with an Indian boy, Steve Grayson, and beat him into insensibility with a rock. Friends of Grayson notified the police and when Police Klaber went to the station Deekard fled to his house nearby, barricaded himself in and when Klaber approached Deekard shot and instantly killed him.

Sheriff Robinson gathered a posse in a few minutes and hurried to the scene. Part of this posse, whom the up of a group of negro desperados. As sheriff commissary Deekard, the house Deekard fired with a rifle, firing Deekard as he could load his weapon. The sheriff fell first, instantly killed. Then two of the negro deputies were slain.

Deekard's house was soon surrounded by a frenzied mob of armed men. Fire was set to a house just north of Deekard's. Volleys were poured into Deekard's house and he was shot down. He was seen to roll over on the floor, strike a match and set fire to his own house, which was soon a roaring furnace in which his body was baked.

NO ENGAGEMENT—ELKINS.

Senator Denies His Daughter and Abruzzi Are Betrothed.

Washington.—Senator Stephen H. Elkins Sunday night made the emphatic announcement that no engagement exists between his daughter, Miss Katherine Elkins, and the Duke d'Abruzzi.

The statement was made with the knowledge and consent of Miss Elkins, who desired that it should be given to the public which has manifested so great an interest in the matter. The statement follows:

"I do not care to say anything further than that my daughter and the Duke d'Abruzzi are not engaged to be married, and that I regret exceedingly the annoyance that must have come to the duke and his family by reason of the almost daily discussion of the matter in the press and the constant publication of rumors for so long a time, rumors which I venture to hope will now cease."

SEVERE HEMORRHOIDS

Bones, and Itching Eczema—Doctor Thought an Operation Necessary—Culicure's Efficacy Proven.

"I am now 80 years old, and three years ago I was taken with an attack of piles (hemorrhoids), bleeding and protruding. The doctor said the only help for me was to go to a hospital and be operated on. I tried several remedies for months but did not get much help. During this time sores appeared which changed to a terrible itching eczema. Then I began to use Culicure Soap, Ointment, and Pills, injecting a quantity of Culicure Ointment with a Culicure Suppository. It took a month of this treatment to get me in a fairly healthy state and then I treated myself once a day for three months and, after that, once or twice a week. The treatments I tried took a lot of money, and it is fortunate that I used Culicure. J. H. Henderson, Hopkinton, N. Y., Apr. 26, 1907."

Snake in a Beer-Barrel.

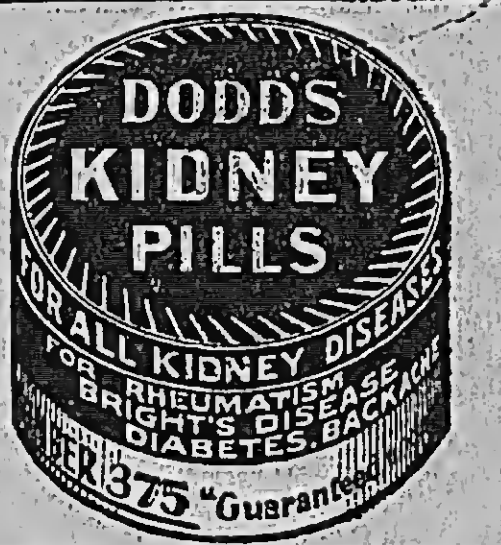

A party of foreigners tapped a keg of beer at Lake Altoona, Pa., but could not get the fluid through the spigot. Investigation disclosed the fact that the bung-hole was stopped up by a snake. The reptile must have crawled into the keg while it was lying empty on the ground, and was drowned when the keg was filled.
